New York State Conference Membership

The most recent membership information was obtained from Katherine Isaac of the AAUP National Office on October 7, 2007. The figures show that the New York State Conference currently has 5,079 members. These include members of formal chapters at forty-eight individual institutions in the public and independent sectors throughout New York State as well as 223 members at ninety-nine institutions with fewer than seven members and 66 additional members without affiliation. Currently eleven of the chapters are collective bargaining chapters with a total of 3,658 members. (NOTE: These figures were compiled from a list of the membership totals at individual institutions. A separate list of individual members showed the total New York State Conference membership to be 4,934.)

New York State Conference Chapters

The following list includes institutions in the NYSC that have formally constituted AAUP Chapters with at least seven members according to the database from the AAUP national office.

Observations and Suggestions

In view of the fact that the two membership lists that were received from the National Office provide different totals with regard to the number of AAUP members in New York State, it is apparent that there are still problems with the accuracy of the membership database. This is a serious matter, since it has a financial impact on the New York State Conference because it affects the amount of dues that the Conference receives from the National Office.

It should also be pointed out that there are institutions on the above list which do not appear on the NY State Conference website. It is suggested that the website be updated to include contact information for all formally constituted chapters.
